DMS International Awarded Survival Evasion Resistance and Escape (SERE) Training Contract

Instructional Support Services for the U.S. Navy, Center for Security Forces (CENSECFOR)

Silver Spring, MD 7/26/2011: DMS International announced today it was awarded, as a subcontractor with our valued partner, SOLKOA, Inc., a multi-million dollar contract by the Department of the Navy. The contract will support the Navy's Code of Conduct/Survival, Evasion, Resistance and Escape/Personnel Recovery (COC/SERE/PR) training program. The specialized combat-ready and survival training is conducted for Navy personnel at CENSECFOR at multiple locations on the East and West Coast. Under the contract, DMS will provide specialized survival Instructor-led classroom field training to Department of the Navy personnel with a high risk of capture. The single-award contract has a one-year base period of performance, two one-year option periods.

CENSECFOR provides training and human performance solutions to Navy Expeditionary, Security, and Anti-terrorism professionals to meet the needs of the Fleet. CSF's primary customers are personnel serving in the Master-at-Arms (MA) Rating, Sailors assigned in an anti-terrorism role, the Navy Security Officer communities, and the Navy Expeditionary Combat Command (NECC). The Center trains Navy personnel worldwide in security and anti-terrorism measures and procedures.

DMS will fulfill the instructional training duties that involve teaching students how to survive in a non-permissive environment and return with honor in the event of capture. Our highly-qualified and skilled instructors are experienced in survival evasion resistance and escape tactics, techniques and procedures. Our winning solutions provide clients with highly-qualified specialists to successfully execute mission critical training projects and programs.

"DMS is pleased to continue supporting CENSECFOR in its efforts to train military personnel in survival evasion resistance and escape techniques," said Magdalah Silva, DMS President & Chief Executive Officer.
